Dr. Paulson Prescribes 3 P's for Success

Positioning, performing and persisting are the three P's for success in your career, according to Management Consultant Dr. Terry Paulson.

He spoke to a group of 150 BART supervisors and managers at a District Management Forum on December 2 at the MetroCenter Auditorium.

"Be sure you're heading in the same direction as your customers," Paulson said, in explaining positioning, "because it's easier to ride a horse in the direction it's going."

He admonished his listeners to "Get off!" if "the horse is dead."

Paulson's second P for success is performing, a commitment to lifelong learning and constant improvement in performance. Work to eliminate errors, he advised, before those errors in procedure or performance affect BART's present and potential passengers.

Finally, Paulson told his BART audience to persist. "If you think you're right, don't give up just because you failed the first time. Stay in the game," he urged.

He advised his listeners to "invest five percent of their working time in their next career." Paulson cautioned that "There are jobs at BART that won't be here in ten years. Technology will wipe them out. You need to stay flexible and be prepared to change."

Resisting change could result in a faltering or flat-growth career, Paulson said. The three P's to watch out for in dealing with change are perfection, procrastination and paralysis, Paulson warned. b2

'A Great Success'

BART's first Employee Health Fair, held on December 10 at the MetroCenter Auditorium was hailed as a 'great success' by a representative of the Alzheimer's Services of the East Bay (ASEB).

Pat Coleman, ASEB Community Relations Director, in a letter to BARTalk, says that she "was impressed with the number of interested employees who had questions about care for family members and friends suffering from Alzheimer's and other dementias."

She concludes her letter with these words: "I was happy to be helpful. Employees felt benefitted as well. The Fair was a great success. Thank you for inviting us."

The event was coordinated by Employee Services Administrator, Barbara George.

WARD BELDING

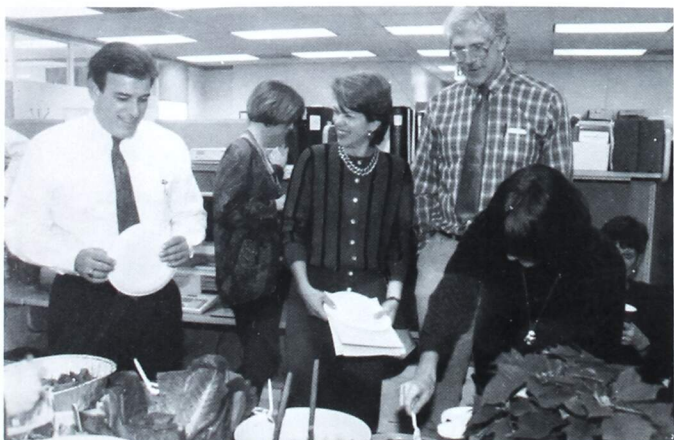

BART's Department Manager of Planning, Ward Belding, joined the District on October 4, 1967, as an Economic Analyst, at a time that construction of the system was in full swing. During the 1980's, he was Supervisor of the Office of Research and headed the group that drafted the BART Short Range Plan. b2

Health Fair A 'Great Success'

Food, singing and good cheer were in abundance throughout BART's Lake Merritt headquarters this past holiday season. Several get-togethers were held on December 17 and 18, and BARTalk tried to cover them all with its roving camera. We hope we didn't overlook your party.

Officers Commended

BART Police officers Robert Haney, center, and Tyrone Forte are commended by Chief Harold Taylor for their alertness in spotting and stopping a stolen vehicle registered with the BART BAAT program. The two men saw the car on Broadway in Oakland at 2:47 in the morning. The BAAT sticker on the car's rear windshield told them that the owner normally would be home in bed, not out on the streets. The driver was not the registered owner and he was taken into custody by the two officers.

A Roast Chicken Dinner With All the Trimmings

BART Station Agents, Train Operators, System Service Workers, Foreworkers and Police personnel enjoyed a roast chicken dinner with all the trimmings on New Year's Eve, thanks to the management of the Transportation and Police departments.

The idea for the dinner was spearheaded by a Station Agent Task Force headed jointly by Diane Johnson and Jim McGrath. "It was a logistical nightmare to get the meals delivered, but the cooperation of both union and management employees really made it work," according to Diane.

It all, there were 273 meals distributed throughout the system between 5 and 9 p.m.

"It's a tough night to work and we wanted to show our employees their effort was appreciated," says Paul Oversier, BART's Chief Transportation Officer.

In addition to dinner, employees who worked past midnight were provided with a special BART t-shirt designed by Eric Thompson. The logo on the shirt emphasized the theme of TEAM, an acronym for Together Everyone Achieves More.

BART Police Continue Christmas Food Tradition

BART's Police Department continued its tradition of organizing packages of food for needy people at Christmas.

Coordination by Lt. Don Tong, the program tapped the Christmas spirit of employees throughout BART, as well as from the Association of Bay Area Governments and the Metropolitan Transportation Commission.

Kevin J. Sharp, Jr., Deputy Police Chief, with a small portion of foodbaskets.

Christmas Eve and Christmas Day deliveries of baskets of food were made to 51 families in all parts of the District.

Don praises the many BART Police officers and cadets who helped with the preparation and distribution of the baskets. "I thank them all," he says, "and I want to stress how willing everyone was to take part and land a hand." He also offers a special 'thank you' to Officer John Junier. "He's the guy I depend on," Don says.

Christmas Booth Decorations

Following a long tradition at BART, station agents decorated their booths for the holiday season.

Selected as the best decorations were, on the M line, the 24th Street Station, with the principal credit to Flor Rosales and Analee Jiminez; C line, Orinda Station, Carol Flores; and A line, Union City, Eugena Rawlinson and Berta Villalva.

The Berkeley Station was the only station on the R line with a decorated booth. The principal decorators were Jimmy Stuart and Kathleen Price.
